ONLINE GAMES

Adapt learning content in order to include an online game

Teachers can try to develop a lesson considering this situation:

- Imagine you are a geography teacher and have a class that needs to learn and retain the nations of Europe.
- Base your lesson on a text about facts on European states and then present the activity on the mobile phone app "world geography"
- your goal is to make sure that your students retain the new information and practice the content.

Remember to:

- create an account on Wordwall
- base the choice of the game based on your students and your goals for the lesson

Checklist of facts of European nations

Make your students go on the internet and look for specific facts about certain nations, i.e.

- the capital city and population
- flag
- population
- religion
- official language
- currency
- highest point
- area size
- average age
- and so on

What the app offers

After downloading the app and starting the game, you can play several rounds with your students.

The app will progressively give the possibility to unlock new features to look for during the game.

Moreover, you will be able to select between continents and make the game even more difficult (or easy)

This can be not only a class activity but also homework and why not... even a test
